

Margaret McIntyre, MBA is the Knowledge Manager for the Center for Innovation in Health Information Systems and is responsible for supporting a community of practice approach to knowledge management. In this role, Ms. McIntyre facilitates knowledge generation and sharing, collaborative problem solving, and strategic thinking sessions and also manages the ConnectionsZone interactive web site.

Margaret McIntyre joined the Center for Innovation in January 2002 and brings extensive experience in knowledge management from the business world. Margaret has worked as a consultant and knowledge manager for the last 17 years. Prior to joining the Center for Innovation, she worked as Knowledge Manager, North America for Egon Zehnder International, a global executive search firm, and Knowledge Manager for Dove Consulting, a boutique consulting firm. Margaret started her consulting career with McKinsey & Company and then worked as an independent consultant before getting into knowledge management. Prior to consulting, Margaret worked in industry in management and marketing roles as well as a research chemist.