Kristin Saarlal is responsible for day-to-day management of programs and projects, budgets, staff, as well as planning, implementation and evaluation of all programs. She directs all of the Center's research.

Ms. Saarlal joined the Task Force in 1994 as Deputy Director for All Kids Count, managing and coordinating the National Program Office for over 30 state and local health departments working to develop state and community-based immunization registries through August 2000. She also supervised the development of the current All Kids Count program to foster development of integrated preventive health information systems.

Previously, Ms. Saarlal worked at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's International Health Program Office on an initiative to strengthen African program managers' skills in developing policy and planning malaria control programs. She also served as a Peace Corps volunteer in Benin, West Africa, from 1986-1989, coordinating a USAID/UNICEF Rural Water and sanitation project from 1986-89.

Ms. Saarlal received her MPH in international health from Tulane University (1990) and her BA in international relations from Michigan State University (1986). She is currently pursuing her ScD in Health Systems Management from Tulane University.
